eirs Give Rembrandt o Be Sold For Opera

Rembrandt's "Portrait of a Student" was donated to the Metropolitan Opera by the heirs of the late Otto H. Kahn to help buy new scenery for next year's opera productions. The painting, which is valued at $125,000 and has never been publicly exhibited in America, will be sold to the highest bidder. It is on public display for the first time at Knoedler's Galleries, 14 East 57th Street, New York.

Part of the money derived from [the] sale of the painting will be [used] for the scenery at next season's opening night, No. 6. Rudolf [Bing], incoming general manager, disclosed that the opening night opera would be Verdi's "Don Carlo", which hasn't been heard at the Metropolitan for twenty-seven years. Traditionally, announcement of the opening night opera is withheld until just before the season starts.

The Metropolitan said that sufficient funds could be obtained from sale of the picture to provide new sets for "several" operas. Whenever such a refurbished opera is presented for the first time, the program will include an acknowledgment of the gift, and a permanent commemorative plaque will be placed at the opera house.

The painting, which is considered by experts to be among Rembrandt's foremost works, was acquired for the Otto Kahn collection in 1910. It measures 26⅝ by 32⅞ inches and bears the signature and date "Rembrandt 16 . . ." The last two numerals of the date are undecipherable. Expert opinion on the date varies from 1645 to 1657, says the New York Herald Tribune.

The figure on the canvas is that of a man, shown in half portrait, with black hair, beard and mustache, seated on a black upholstered couch. He wears a black velvet hat with a gathered brim and a gold cord at the base of the tam o' shanter crown, and a brick-red doublet with a small white collar. His cloak is of warm brown cloth lined with mink.

Before going to Mr. Kahn's collection, the painting was owned by the Privy Councillor Paul Delaroff of St. Petersburg (now Leningrad.) In 1908 and 1909 it was exhibited at The Hague in a special Rembrandt show in honor of the accession to the Netherlands throne of Queen Wilhelmina.

Mr. Kahn, who died in 1934, was for forty-eight years a member of the Metropolitan Opera's Board of Directors, serving both as president and chairman of the board during that period. Mrs. Kahn,

Z. O. A. HEAD SCORES ATTACK ON ZIONISM

Benjamin G. Browdy, president of the Zionist Organization of America, strongly excoriated the so-called American Council for Judaism for its "renewed public campaign to besmirch and undermine all the noble concepts of the Zionist movement which have been held sacred by Jewish people for centuries." Characterizing the Council as being comprised of "a negligible number of frightened but financially affluent individuals," the Zionist head warned that its activities might do "serious harm to the relationship between America and the Jewish state," adding "It is imperative that these activities and designs be exposed and vigorously combatted."

In a communication addressed to the heads of the more than 800 ZOA branches throughout the United States, Mr. Browdy called upon them to "mobilize maximum ZOA membership" and to "intensify every phase of ZOA activity." This, he said, "will be the most powerful reply to the public campaign launched by the Council against our movement in this hour when Israel needs our help more than ever."

Guggenheim Awards Set New High Record

The John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation announced 158 awards amounting to $500,000. This was the longest list and the greatest value since the foundation was established a quarter of a century ago.

The 1,500 applications for the fellowship covered "an extraordinary range" of scholars and creative workers, Dr. James F. Mathias, the associate secretary, reported. He said this indicated an increasing trend toward research among men who during and after the recent war were caught in the routine details of academic life.

The individual awards varied, the average being about $2,900. Among the recipients was Dr. Samuel J. Konefsky of Brooklyn College, who has been blind since he was 8 years old. Youngest of the new fellows was Dr. Bernard Schwartz, 26, of New York University. The oldest was Dr. M. C. Terry, 79, a physician in Palo Alto, Calif.

The foundation to date has awarded 2,317 fellowships aggregating $5,150,000. Eighty-nine of [illegible] America, Africa, the Near East, the Caribbean [illegible] and Alaska. The new fellows represent twenty-eight states, the District of Columbia and Canada. Fifteen are women.

The purpose of the awards, as defined by the founder, the late Senator Simon Guggenheim, are "to add to the educational, literary, artistic and scientific power of this country and also to provide for the cause of better international understanding." The foundation is in memory of John Simon Guggenheim, who died as a young man in 1922.

Great Hebrew Scholar Dies A British Subject

Dr. Lazarus Goldschmidt, seventy-eight, Hebrew and Oriental scholar, who translated the Babylonian Talmud into German, died in London, England, of a heart ailment. Dr. Goldschmidt, an authority on the Talmud, Hebrew compilation of civil and canonical law, was born in Plungiany, Lithuania, in 1871.

He studied at the Yeshiva in Slobodka, Lithuania, and then at the Universities of Strasbourg and Berlin. He was to have received an honorary degree in absentia from the Hebrew Union College, in Cincinnati, Ohio, next June for his "superb erudition and outstanding contributions in the field of Jewish scholarship."

He translated many Ethiopic works into German and Hebrew, including "Ethiopic Enoch." His translation of the Babylonian Talmud into German was the only complete version of that work in any European language. His other works include a concordance of the Talmud, an analysis of its legal portions and publication of a new edition of [illegible]

He bequeathed his library of Hebrew and Oriental religious books to the Royal Library in Copenhagen. Dr. Goldschmidt became a British subject after Hitler came to power in Germany. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Lily Goldschmidt, and a son, Emanuel Goldsmith, both of London.

Reports Failure To Denazify West Germany

The World Jewish Congress asserted in a report that the creation of the Western German Republic had not advanced the cause of democracy in Germany. In a twenty-four-page memorandum submitted to the U.S. State Department the organization said that turning over virtually complete governmental power to the Germans had resulted in furthering the growth of ultra-nationalism, anti-Semitism and anti-Allies sentiment.

In this discussion of anti-Semitism, Dr. Marcus cited reports of physical violence, insults, veiled accusations in the press, desecration of cemeteries, discrimination in employment, and even the throwing of a bomb into the home of a Jewish merchant.

The report contended that German political parties were moving toward the right, that the Germans continued to show a lack of interest in real democracy, that the denazification program was scandalous and that former Nazi publishers were flocking back into business with newspapers that were "chauvinistic, anti-democratic, anti-Semitic, anti-D. P. and anti-American."

"Very recently, a consolidation of the right-wing political parties and various refugee groups under their influence took place," the report said. "Reports from the American and British zones show that the extreme right wing groups are drawing together for what will be their first real trial of strength with the moderate established parties."

Dr. Robert S. Marcus, political director of the Jewish Congress, said that former Nazis and their sympathizers constitued a "very large percentage" of the total number of local Government officials. He quoted figures from Baden, which, he said, had acted more vigorously than other German states in denazification, to show the failure of the program. In 237,688 cases handled up to the end of 1949, he said, 87 per cent of the accused were exonerated.

German Clergy Denounces Anti-Semitism

Clergymen of the Synod of the Evangelical Church of Germany closed a four-day session in the Soviet Sector with an unprecedentedly candid appeal to their compatriots to divorce themselves from anti-Semitism and to oppose this spirit "wherever it has newly arisen."

A second resolution appealed to "the powers who occupy our country" for the release of war prisoners and those interned, the signing of a peace treaty and the abolition of the borders between East and West Germany. No mention was made of the tension between

PARIS RABBI WAS RESISTANCE HERO

Rabbi Julien Weill, seventy-seven, Grand Rabbi of Paris since 1933, died at his Paris home. The author of several works on the history and theology of Judaism, he was a lecturer at the Ecole des Hautes Etudes; formerly president of the Society of Jewish Studies in France; and a member of the faculty of the Jewish Theological Seminary of Paris.

A hero of the French resistance during the Nazi occupation, Rabbi Weill played a leading role in the rehabilitation of French Jewry after the recent war. He was arrested many times by the Nazis but was steadfast in his refusal to be deported from Paris and stayed in the city during the entire occupation. Last year he was made an officer of the Legion of Honor in recognition of his services to France.

Warns Aid Does Not Give Zionists Voice In Israeli Policy

Premier David Ben-Gurion told world Zionist leaders conferring in Jerusalem that their financial and other aid to Israel did not entitle them to a voice in the affairs of Israel. The Premier was addressing the seventy-seven man Zionist General Council, which today entered the sixth day of its session.

He said constructive criticism was welcome, but only Zionists who came to Israel and assumed the responsibilities of citizenship were entitled to a voice in determining policy. His statement was in reply to demands from Zionists for a charter to deal with specific matters such as absorption of immigrants and land settlement. The Premier said assistance from world Jewry was imperative, but this would not entitle foreign Zionists to share in policy-making, according to the New York Times.

Premier Ben-Gurion's statement was not official, as the government has not yet reached a decision, but it reflected opinion believed to be crystallizing in government circles that foreign Zionists who do not choose to settle in Israel are entitled to no more say in the state's affairs than other Jews who support Israel financially and politically, although they are not affiliated to Zionist organizations. This opinion is contrary to the position of the World Zionist Organization since it was created in 1897.

The position has been that payment of 50 cents and a signed declaration endorsing the Zionist aim to establish Israel entitled Jews the world over to elect delegates to the biennial congress. The congress has been the supreme body of the Zionist movement and elected the executive of the Jewish Agency for Palestine that has been the shadow cabinet of the embryo state and made political, economic, social and other policies until the republic was created.

Citizens of the United States, Great Britain, Poland, Germany and other countries were elected to the agency and had equal voices with Palestinian Jewish members in shaping policies.

After the state was created, Palestinian Jewish Agency leaders such as Dr. Chaim Weizmann, Mr. Ben Gurion and Moshe Sharett went over to the government, which naturally took over responsibility for state affairs. The functions of the Zionist movement in Israel narrowed down to aiding the absorption of immigrants and land settlement.

Some government leaders now want sole control over these matters too. The Zionists have requested the Government specifically to delegate functions to the agency.

Zionist leaders favor perpetuation of the Zionist movement despite the achievement of its declared goal of attaining a publicly and legally assured Jewish state. The consensus of seventy-seven delegates of the Zionist General Council — the supreme Zionist body between biennial Congresses — was that the burden of absorbing immigration and developing the barren country was too heavy for Israel alone.

Virtually no support was voiced for the position of Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion that the Zionists confine their activities to fund-raising, propaganda, and training potential immigrants for Israel. Mr. Ben-Gurion wants sole Government control of immigration and land settlement.

The majority supported Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the New York section of the Jewish Agency Executive, who asked that the Government formally share responsibilities and certain functions with the Zionist Organization. Dr. Goldmann also requested the status of priority over non-Zionist bodies such as the American Joint Distribution Committee and the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society.

A spokesman for the Zionist Organization of America, Magistrate Morris Rothenberg of New York, warned Mr. Ben-Gurion that without actual contact with the daily work in Israel, the Zionist Organization would die out in a few years.

Rabbi Israel Goldstein, of New York, cautioned against the illusion that Americans of the Jewish faith were "in the pocket" in the event of another international crisis over Israel, reports the Times. He said that only the Zionist Organization, strengthened by daily contact with Israel, could influence and educate non-Zionists. His statement irked the Minister of Labor, Mrs. Golda Myerson, who said that some of the finest Jews in the United States never paid membership dues in any Zionist organization.

GERMAN CLERGY

the churches and the Administration in Eastern Germany.

The shorter and more striking declaration attributed the catastrophe through which the Germans had passed to the judgment of God for what the Germans had done to the Jews. It further asked that Christian congregations undertake to protect Jewish cemeteries against the repeated desecrations during the post-war years.

The other resolution asserted that no power or government on earth was as strong as the Christian love that should be given to all men of all races and beliefs, especially the homeless and dispossessed. It petitioned the occupying powers to insure that no man was deprived of freedom or was jailed without due trial regardless of race, creed or mental conceptions, and that none was forced to act against his conscience.

With reference to war prisoners, the resolution requested the occupying powers to "let mercy rule against all who are in your power."

"Through a just peace treaty, end at last the war which has beaten down the nation," it added. "Abolish the borders between the East and the West which tear our people in two and endanger the peace of the world. Give the German people the possibility to create in freedom a new legal order in which the East and the West again come to unity."

ISRAEL CELEBRATES SECOND BIRTHDAY

Jerusalem was the center of the official Independence Day celebrations in Israel on April 23, and thousands of revelers crowded the beflagged capital to celebrate the state's second birthday. More than 200,000 persons, many of whom had danced in flood-lit streets from dusk to dawn, jammed the pavements to watch the military parade that highlighted the official festivities.

President Chaim Weizmann, making his first public appearance since his recent illness, Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion and Maj. Gen. Yigal Yalin, Chief of Staff, reviewed the parade, which comprised the Army, Navy, Air Force, police and youth battalion formations.

For one stretch, the parade passed within view of King Abdullah's Arab Legion outposts on the walls of the Old City. In accordance with the terms of the armistice with Jordan, the number of troops was curtailed and no heavy armor paraded.

Foreign diplomats were conspicuously absent from the reviewing stand in Jerusalem. Their position is delicate in view of the political situation arising out of Israel's transfer of the capital to Jerusalem in defiance of the United Nations vote to internationalize the city. They had been sounded out as to whether they would go to Jerusalem and consequently had not been invited, according to the New York Times.

The diplomats also were not invited to Mr. Ben-Gurion's garden party in Jerusalem, but the entire corps turned out for the party given in Tel Aviv by Mayor Israel Rokach.

Elsewhere in the country local parades and celebrations were held. There were aerial and naval displays off Tel Aviv and Haifa.

Thousands of apparently well fed Canadian children suffer twisted ribs, curved leg bones and poor teeth as a result of inadequate supplies of vitamin D in their diet. Vitamin D does not occur in sufficient quantities in normal diet to satisfy the needs of a child. It must, therefore, be supplied in the form of capsules, tablets, or liquids. Vitamin D preparations are safe, cheap and easy to obtain. Your child needs this protection throughout the growing years.

Does hot weather upset your health and disorganize your enjoyment of life? You can't do anything about the weather, but the way you dress may have a lot to do with your summertime comfort. Dark colored clothes retain body heat and tight collars and ties prevent air circulation and cause discomfort.

WE ARE THE CLASS OF '50

Many among us are War Veterans—some with family responsibilities not always associated with the younger graduate.

We know that a university degree will not in itself guarantee success. It must be backed up with hard work. But, whether or not we have acquired a particular knowledge of direct interest to employers in any particular industry, we still suggest our degree is a good reference, for we have at least proven ourselves to the extent of obtaining it.

Graduates are available from all types of courses this year.

If you can employ a graduate, or offer summer employment to an undergraduate, please 'phone or write the Executive and Professional Officer at your nearest NATIONAL EMPLOYMENT SERVICE office, NOW.

Commentaries

By Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi

Text: Exodus 32.1: "And when the people saw that Moses delayed to come down from the Mount, the people gathered themselves together unto Aaron, and said unto him: "Up, make us a god who shall go before us; for as for this man Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we know not what is become of him!"

Only forty days after the Israelites received the ten commandments on Mount Sinai they committed a grave sin. They turned to idol worship. They who but yesterday pledged to live by God's moral law forgot Moses and God and madly danced around a golden calf shouting, "This is thy God, O Israel." What happened then has been repeated time and again through history. People have made and are making golden calves, false gods. These gods lead to disappointment and tragedy. Behold, the fetish we make of social position, money, and power.

Our age is guilty of the idolatry of ideologies. What is an ideology? A body of ideas formulated in an organized system of thought. Ideologies have been great motivating forces in advancing civilization and the cause of human progress. But ideologies, when made into gods, endanger human advance. When people ascribe infallibility to an ideology and make the ideology the only promise of salvation, then, indeed, that system of thought, whatever name it may bear, becomes a menace.

We can best understand the ideology of Communism when we reflect how in mediaeval days Holy Scripture itself was misunderstood and treated as infallible. And we need not go back to the mediaeval period of history. There are people in this very atomic age who worship the Holy Book itself, forgetting that this Holy Writing, though divinely inspired, has within it elements that are temporary and human. Hence, the Bible suffers most often at the hands of its friends.

The bible of Communism is "Das Kapital," by Karl Marx. This volume was first published in 1867 and represents the work of an outstanding student of economics who spent years in reflection upon the economic problems of life. No one can deny that "Das Kapital" is a unique and great work, but many of its theories no longer hold water and are meaningless in our own day and generation. For example, the Communists who worship "Das Kapital" as infallible are in a state of confusion. They cannot understand how it is that American capitalism still endures and has not collapsed in accordance with the prophecy of Karl Marx.

Of course, there is the danger, too, on our part that we might make an idol of our present-day democracy. Our democracy is far from being infallible. It is far from perfect and there is much we must do to make it a growing process toward a state of perfection. We can best meet the challenge of Communism by perfecting a democratic way of life. But let us not become orthodox in our democratic thinking, for the orthodoxy of any ideology results in the closed mind and leads its adherents to become persecutors and inquisitors of those who dare to differ.

Human progress, too, depends on mobility of thought and not fixity of thought. Hence, we can understand the tragedy of the Soviets at present engaging in inquisitions and in the persecution of all those who dare to differ from the orthodoxy held by the Soviets. The present-day worship of ideologies is due to a sense of arrogance which possesses so many. If we would but practice humility in declaring our opinions, whatever they may be, and realize that revelation is progressive and that God daily reveals unto man new discoveries, we would be a generation blessed with happiness most abundantly.

Above all else, in the pursuit of truth, we must ever try to live by the light of reason. For so many this important light burns very dimly and, hence, we live irrationally. This results even in cold wars which in turn may result in physical warfare and the very destruction of our civilization. Let us, therefore, stop dancing madly around our ideologies and let us examine these lest we become idol worshippers and forget God who bids us all to live in justice and in a spirit of genuine good will. Must man descend again to the beast and engage in world suicide by planning another war? We of the West and they of the East must realize that whatever ideologies we in turn uphold, these elements of error and fallibility and above them is sovereign God, the Father of us all.

LAG BA-OMER, "SCHOLARS' FESTIVAL", AND A NEW GREAT LITERARY EVENT

In the future, this translation will no doubt be referred to as the Soncino Edition of the Talmud, or more briefly, the Soncino Talmud. The Soncino press has been so called after Jewish printers of that name in Medieval times. The Soncino family was Italian in origin, deriving their name from a little town in the duchy of Milan, Italy. Their printers' mark was a tower, connected in some way now forgotten, with the Canal Maggiore. And, true to the Soncino tradition, this English Talmud bears upon its binding and its first page the tower of the ancient Soncinos.

A complete and full rendering of the Talmud into the vernacular has long been needed. Of course, an occasional tractate of the Talmud has found its way into English from time to time, coming sometimes from the original and sometimes by way of the German or the French translations. Furthermore, prompted by sharpened curiosity, books about the Talmud have appeared and been read in various countries of the world. But, until this effort, the whole, vast realm of the Talmud had not yet been carried over into the language of England and America.

About fifteen years ago, a small but devoted group of Jewish scholars in Great Britain determined to dedicate themselves to the Herculean task of making an English translation of the entire Talmud and of publishing it in the modern manner. The first volume, Baba Kamma, appeared in 1935. In that volume the late Very Reverend Joseph H. Hertz, then Chief Rabbi of Great Britain, wrote a foreword in which he described the nature of the Talmud, its history, its creators, its spirit, and its contribution to Judaism and to human culture.

The editor-in-chief of this enormous work has been Rabbi Dr. I. Epstein, a most learned Talmudist. He was assisted by a large staff of scholars and writers, and fortunately lived to see the project brought to its completion. In the last volume to appear, Zebahim, the editor writes: "All who have taken part can thank God that to them has been granted the opportunity to apply their powers, whether great or small, to a work which should serve to communicate abroad the religious faith and the worldly wisdom enshrined in the pages of the Talmud, for the inspiration and guidance of this generation and the generations to come.... May it be His will that these volumes should help to spread the knowledge of His Torah among an ever growing circle of disciples, and to foster the appreciation of Jewish teachings in an ever-increasing measure in English-speaking Jewries and beyond..."

Each of the 33 volumes of the Soncino Talmud, and each of the tractates within the volumes, has an introduction by the translator telling about the contents of the volume or tractate, summarizing the essential ideas, concepts and laws, and adding guideposts to help the reader along the intricate way. At the bottom of each page, properly marked, are found helpful notes to elucidate the text, when the going turns rough and stormy. These notes are sometimes of historical interest; sometimes they refer to the Bible or to other Jewish sources; sometimes they are of an archaeological nature. At the end of each volume, there is a Glossary of difficult, technical terms, an Index of Biblical references, and a General Index.

This last, the General Index, is a most useful addition and will prove a comfortable boon to all who seek information about some special subject. The Talmud itself in the original does not provide the reader with such help. Consequently, unless one is familiar with the Talmud, it is most difficult to locate discussions on special themes and problems. Indeed, one finds himself as helpless in the sea of the Talmud as a lonely swimmer in vast, tempestuous waters, with no landmark to give him help. With this General Index, the modern reader is given tremendous aid in locating the information he desires. After consulting the English Talmud, he can readily, and a bit learnedly, turn to the original text.

The classical Hebrew commentators on the Talmud are constantly consulted, like the indispensable Rashi, the contentious Tosafists, the systematic Maimonides, and many others. Modern scholars, too, are represented—historical Graetz, clarifying Weiss, profound Ginzberg, brilliant Zeitlin. The Soncino Talmud is a whole world, a Jewish universe of thought and feeling, of hope and aspiration, of individual and social law, a meeting place of the Divine and the human, all striving to mold and refine the relationships of men and groups so as to achieve inner and outer harmony in every phase of life, seeking to understand how the Jewish community and the world community might be built upon the secure foundations of truth, justice and peace, and thus establish God's Heavenly Kingdom upon this weary earth.

The present Chief Rabbi, of Great Britain, the Very Reverend Dr. Israel Brodie, who succeeded Dr. Hertz, wrote the Epilogue to the completed work and in it he states: "On the shelves of reference libraries in this country and in other lands now stands a monumental work of many volumes attractively set up and printed... The Talmud, despite willful misunderstanding and vilification of prejudiced detractors, belongs to the few great works of world culture, its encyclopedic variety is now more broadly accessible to the non-Jewish scholar. My last word to all those concerned with the Soncino Talmud is in the form of a blessing attributed to Moses when he beheld the completed tabernacle of the wilderness: 'May it be the will of Heaven that the Divine Presence rest upon the work of your hands.'" To this blessing we should all add our fervent affirmation. — Amen!

Were we living in more civilized times, the publication of the Soncino Talmud, would undoubtedly call forth joyous celebrations all over the world. For the birth of a spiritual universe is no small event. Even though this is a translation, nevertheless, coming from the mysterious processes of creation, it bears within it the spirit of the Divine. God is more than the Creator of physical worlds. He is also the Maker of spiritual universes, the Inspirer whose very breath animates the minds and hearts of creative human beings. His spirit is incarnate in the enduring works of immortal scholars, those servants of the Truth that leads men to freedom. On this Scholars' Holiday, let us rejoice in this magnificent monument of Jewish scholars, the English translation of Israel's Talmud.
